

PRESS RELEASE

General-Industries Deutschland GmbH has been a certified waste management company for 10 years

Eschwege, March 20, 2025 - General-Industries Deutschland GmbH (GID) was certified as a waste management company by the bvse-Entsorgungsgemeinschaft e.V. for the tenth time in a row this year.

This anniversary was the occasion for a visit to the company premises in Eschwege by Mr. Lacher, Managing Director of bvse-Entsorgungsgemeinschaft e.V.. There, the certificate of honor for 10 years as a waste management company was presented. GID was thus honored for its sustainable commitment to plastics processing and its professional quality management. Dr. Ing Moerl, Quality Manager at GID, happily accepted the certificate on behalf of the company. Plant manager Mr. Dippel was also visibly proud.

As a certified waste management company, GID is subject to an annual inspection by an independent expert in accordance with Section 56 of the German Waste Management Act (KrWG). This regular inspection ensures that GID can consistently offer its customers the highest quality and reliable recycling solutions.

Jörg Lacher, Managing Director of bvse-Entsorgungsgemeinschaft, explains: "Year after year, an independent and officially recognized expert inspects the work processes and operating sites. For 10 years now, we have seen that the idea of quality is lived by the company management and employees and is implemented with commitment in day-to-day business."

GID is the European market leader in the recycling of EPP foam plastics. EPS and LDPE foam plastics are also processed. Every year, the company processes a large amount of plastic waste into high-quality regranulates, which are then fed back into the industrial cycle. Customers are raw material and compound manufacturers or plastics processors, for example in the packaging sector. Used protective packaging can be turned into new interior trim for a car, for example.

The company relies on state-of-the-art technology and continuous further development in order to meet the increasing demands of the plastics processing industry.

General-Industries Deutschland GmbH proudly looks back on a decade as a certified waste management company and considers itself well equipped for the future. "Our aim is to further optimize our processes and develop innovative recycling solutions that benefit our customers and the environment in equal measure," concludes Moerl.

The award on its 10th anniversary as a certified waste management company confirms GID's continuous quality and reliability in the field of plastics recycling. The company proudly looks back on a decade of certified services and continues to be committed to sustainable recycling solutions.
